

I was ready for bed and decided to skim through your book of poems before I slept and I kept turning the pages and could not put it down. Your title "Windows of Reflection" is truly apt, as I read through your expressions and thoughts of all aspects of life and living I could so relate to it with my own life and I am sure every reader will relate it to their own.

The poems are simple yet profound, specially "A journey called Life", reflected my own journey. I loved the simplicity of your thoughts which spoke volumes and showed the reader a mirror and subtly sent the message of how we miss out the beauty of life in our everyday lives. We see the reflection of ourselves for what we can be and are not.

Congratulations and thank you for this beautiful and sweet book of thoughts and lessons which a reader can keep going back to. This book is for all ages. I wish you all the success
